Afterword

This all started when, one day,
it popped into my head that Index was something like a giant rodent.
In the end, it became an entire daydream.

I of course thought many times about whether it was okay for the illustrator of the actual light novels to make something like this.

So I tried to come up with a concept that suited the heartwarming scene of Index as a small animal.
However, I couldn't come up with anything else.
I decided Indekchu was probably the best I was capable of.
So I settled for it and took various measures to make this a reality.

And this ends Indekchu.
I have not given a single thought to a continuation.

But if by some mistake, a continuation does happen,
see you then.

Respectfully yours.
